he CIA deputy director, Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, described the congressional investigations of the CIA as "rummaging through the garbage pails of history." In a speech in Houston before the Executive Breakfast Club, he called for public support of the agency. "What they are charging us with are things done in the 1950s and 1960s," Walters said. "This is like charging Gerald Ford with what Harry Truman did." He said any business that had 76,000 employees over a 27-year period would have had problems. "We've had our share of nuts, kooks, overzealous people, people with poor judgment, and everything else," he said.
